something being put together.

I am a developer working in the Bay Area. Originally from Chennai, I moved to San Jose to earn my MS in Computer Science/Engineering from San Jose State University. Since then, I've focused on providing engineering and development solutions for several prominent companies seeking to diversify their customer touch points including Kaiser Permanente, Walmart...

*What do you aim to accomplish with your work? How do you consider yourself different from other developers? What do you bring to the table to employers? (ie: is there something in your process or thinking they'd like?) SELL YOURSELF
